

Handmade Ceramic Piece

By Ervin Dixon

Ervin Dixon, a highly skilled potter known for his beautiful usable pots, provides us with another amazing piece of pottery.

Trained at UNL and the Kansas City Art Institute, he yearned to become a “country potter,” returning to Nebraska after teaching at the University of Miami, Florida.

Ervin finds great satisfaction in what has developed over the years in his converted 1895 church studio known as Cedar Creek Pottery. He relishes the challenge of creating forms that fit their purpose functionally and aesthetically, using sweeps of color and often the mark of his own hand.

Thanks, Ervin, for your continued enthusiastic support of Spring Creek Prairie!
